About Us

The Research Unit 'Democratic Innovations' was established by Professor Brigitte Geißel in 2012 at Goethe University Frankfurt.

Professor Geißel and her team analyze various democratic innovations in the context of representative democracy.

WELCOME WORD

“Nowadays, a number of democracies are coping with serious problems of public disappointment and dissatisfaction by experimenting with new forms of participation. Systematic and in depth research on this topic, which is one of the most crucial and salient research questions in contemporary democratic theory, is still lacking and at the same time needed. Hence, the recently established Research Unit on ‘Democratic Innovations’ at Goethe University Frankfurt in Germany, which addresses this topic on the development of new participatory procedures, will play an especially significant role in filling this gap.”

Prof. Leonardo Morlino (LUISS, Rome), President of the International Political Science Association (IPSA) 2009-2012

The research unit seeks to answer - but is not limited to - the following questions:

- ⊗ What are democratic innovations?
- ⊗ Are democratic innovations necessary?
- ⊗ What are the effects of democratic innovations?
- ⊗ What is the future of democratic innovations?
- ⊗ How can democratic innovations and representative mechanisms be combined?

Research Program

Despite the worldwide triumph of democracy, the quest for an optimal form of government has not yet reached the “end of history”. Modern representative democracies are confronted with several challenges. A variety of democratic innovations were developed and tested to cope with these challenges, e.g. direct democratic procedures or dialogue-oriented procedures. The Research Unit examines these innovations.
