SAFETY ON CAMPUS

It is sometimes the case that students and other members of the University feel unsure or ill at ease on campus at night and outside normal opening hours. This flyer provides some general advice on how to behave in a threatening situation as well as information on the location of well-lit paths and whom to contact in an emergency.

SAFETY ADVICE FOR THREATENING SITUATIONS

- Follow your instincts and act accordingly.
- If you feel uneasy, do not hesitate to call university security (see telephone numbers) or the police (110). If in doubt, the following applies: It is better to call once too often than once too little.
- Draw attention to your situation. Approach people and address them directly if you require help.
- If you are alone, be mentally ready to defend yourself (by shouting, whistling, kicking or using your keychain or pepper spray).
- Be alert and help others in a threatening situation. The same applies here too: It is better to ask once too often if everything is alright than once too little.
- Notify the Equal Opportunities Office (069-798-129 79) of incidents on campus so that the extent of physical and/or sexual assault is known and the University can take preventive measures.
